A word from the Editor

This month's cover story zooms in on spaces and Buildings devoted to education. Not strictly a 'schools' piece, we are more intrigued by the ways in which the vital activity of learning, and ask the question if architects and interior designers can really affect what teachers and students do. It is a category that evolves very slowly, which is probably appropriate; teaching does not change rapidly. In this issue we travel to Europe, around Asia and as far as Montreal, to see some of the most tantalising new built work. And of course we celebrate this year's winners, who astonish and inspire in equal measure.

Correction

In our issue of hinge vol 252, on page 32 the floorplans shown were for another project, by Branch Studio Architects. We apologise to both the architects and the readers for the mistake.
