

TIME

THE URANIUM UNDERWORLD

ISIS WANTS A DIRTY BOMB—AND IT KNOWS WHERE TO GET ONE

9 771064 030005 13

time.com

2 | Conversation
4 | For the Record

The Brief

News from the U.S. and around the world

5 | The fading power of Trump's threats

7 | Chemical attack marks grim milestone in Syria's civil war

8 | Graham Allison on what Chinese President Xi Jinping wants from Trump

10 | Ian Bremmer: why the U.S. and Egypt are closer

12 | NCAA champs from the Carolinas

14 | The new North American job magnet

The View

Ideas, opinion, innovations

15 | The 100th anniversary of U.S. entry into World War I is a big deal in Kansas City, Mo.

16 | Psychiatrists on how to deal with schmucks at work

17 | A new skyscraper with presidential ties designed by Zaha Hadid Architects

18 | Dispatch: the "doomsday" vault for seeds in Spitsbergen, Norway

The Features

Ticking Time Bombs

Inside the black market for nuclear materials By Simon Shuster 20

Finding Home

What happens when a Syrian refugee family is denied asylum. A continuing series By Aryn Baker, photographs by Lynsey Addario 26

Coal's Rocky Road

Trump promises to bring coal jobs back. In West Virginia, residents wish it were that simple By Justin Worland 30

Bigger Bird

How Sesame Street aims to become a global force at a time when children's-TV ratings are dropping By Belinda Luscombe 36

Time Off

What to watch, read, see and do

41 | A new R&B sound is the heart and soul of spring's best music

43 | Quick Talk with Khalid

44 | Pierce Brosnan's western soap, The Son

45 | Chris Evans stars in Gifted; Anne Hathaway in Colossal

46 | A guide to the Fast & Furious movies

48 | How David Letterman made late night weird

Inside a Southern Coal Corporation mine in Monroe County, West Virginia

Photograph by Peter van Agtmael—Magnum Photos for TIME

ON THE COVER: Illustration by Brian Stauffer for TIME