CLIMATE CHANGE HITS POOR PEOPLE THE HARDEST

BY JOHN CONVERSEY | COMBONI MISSIONARY

Global warming is already producing destructive effects that disproportionately afflict poor people around the world, threatening their very lives. However, we must also keep in mind that, as the earth's temperatures continue to rise, everyone in the world will eventually be threatened.

JOURNEY TOWARDS CLIMATE
RESILIENCY

BY ELENIDA BASUG | CONTRIBUTOR

Being one of the most vulnerable countries to climate change, the Philippines signed the Paris Agreement and has been implementing climate change adaptation and mitigation measures. But the country's response will only work if it puts communities at the center by empowering them.

THE SINKING PHILIPPINES

BY HENRYLITO D. TACIO | JOURNALIST

Constant flooding happening in major cities, like Davao and Manila, are due to sea level rising above average. The phenomenon intensifies storm surges resulting in more intense typhoons. Coastal areas and populations bear the brunt of these adverse factors caused by climate change.
